City to Host Fourth Annual Park(ing) Day

Hyattsville will host its fourth annual Park(ing) Day on Friday, September 20, 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., as local businesses and organizations transform City parking spaces into “parks” for everyone to enjoy.

Park(ing) Day is a national event that seeks to prompt people to re-think the use of public space. The goal is to turn metered parking spaces into artistic and creative displays and by doing so, bolster the sense of civic and community pride in Hyattsville.

“We’re thrilled to host our fourth annual Park(ing) Day,” said Hyattsville Mayor Candace Hollingsworth. “We encourage everyone to come and experience the many pop-up parks designed by and for this community.”

This year’s Park(ing) Day will feature ten participants which will offer information, promotions, games, giveaways, and much more. Participants will set up by the Shoppes at Arts District, off Gallatin Street by the Municipal Building, the Queens Chapel Town Center, and the University Town Center.
